Welcome!

This Travel Workbook is all about France. You'll learn about French geography, some history and plenty more. Just follow the instructions below to complete the Workbook and find the final answer!

On the next page is an Answer Grid. Each line has a number which tells you which activity you need to do in order to find the answer.

Do each activity puzzle. The answer that has a red star is the answer that goes into the Answer Grid.

If you don't know the answer, that's OK - you can research it! ask your parents, check on the Internet or ring your grandparents and ask them.

When you've solved all the puzzles, from number 1 all the way to number 7, then the secret word is shown in the blue boxes.

Share your answer with us or your parents. They'll tell us and we will make sure you get the next Travel Workbook.

email your answer to info@deliberatetravel.com

The Answer Grid

This is where you fill in all the answers from the activity sheets. Number 1 is the answer for Activity 1 and so on. At the end, when you've filled everything in, you can read the letters in pink, downwards. This is the final answer! Tell the answer to your parents and they'll make sure to tell us.

Read this
final answer

1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8.

The final answer is: _____

Have you ever heard of this before? If not, look it up on Google and find some pictures!

2. The Map

France is a big country - the 3rd largest in Europe. It has roughly 6 sides, so it is sometimes called L'Hexagone which means The Hexagon (a shape with 6 sides).

A school class is travelling through France. Follow their route on the next page and maybe you can help them when they get in trouble.

The class arrives from England through the Channel tunnel to Calais.

The train then continues and drops the class off in the capital city.

There they spend a day and then get onto a bus and drive east to the city where the European Parliaments regularly meets, very close to the border.

After visiting the Parliament they drive south passing Lyon and the French Alps to arrive on the Southern coast, which is called the Côte d'Azur.

They have two lovely days on the beach. Then they continue their journey along the Pyrenees and north up the Western coast where they learn how to surf.

They continue their journey driving north all along the western coast passing La Rochelle.

In Rennes they take a left turn and drive until they can't go any further.

Unfortunately their bus breaks down and a replacement bus needs to come in from Paris.

To which city does the replacement bus need to drive to pick up the class?

3. The Tour de France

The Tour de France is held every year in the summer and is a professional cycling race. The route changes every year and goes across the whole of the country. The person who is first in the ranking each day gets to wear a yellow jersey.

These cyclists are taking part in the Tour de France. Follow their routes to see who's winning. The answer to this puzzle is the name of the cyclist that wins the race.

4b. The Storming of The Bastille

In 1789 France was a difficult place to live if you were poor. The very rich people were called nobles – they were friends with the King and Queen, lived in castles or palaces and had lots of servants to do their work for them. They didn't pay any taxes. Everyone else, like the bakers, the merchants, the people who made things, had to pay lots of money in tax. The working people were angry, especially as it was difficult to get food at that time. In France there was a famine, which meant it was hard to find food and simple things like bread and salt were expensive. Lots of people were hungry.

Also, the people didn't like the King and Queen very much. King Louis XVI (the Sixteenth) was a weak King who had trouble making decisions. His wife, Queen Marie Antoinette was also unpopular because she liked expensive parties and rich food. She didn't seem to care about the normal people of France at all.

The poor people in Paris were sick of the King so they decided it was time to get rid of him and have a Parliament instead, so the people could make some decisions. This form of government is called democracy because all the people can make decisions about laws. They wanted to fight against the King and his army but they didn't have many guns, only pitchforks and rakes. They knew that

Taxes are money that people give to the government so they can pay for things that everyone uses, like roads and schools

Parliament is a place where politicians meet to make laws for a country

When people talk about Kings which have the same name as a previous King, they use Roman Numerals like I, II, III instead of numbers

Democracy is a type of government where the people make decisions, usually by voting in elections there was a supply of gunpowder in a building called The Bastille.

The Bastille was a prison where people who had upset the King went. Life there was tough and many prisoners died because it was so dirty and cold. The Bastille was also where some soldiers lived with their weapons.

On 14th July 1789, the people of Paris decided to attack the Bastille, steal the guns and free the prisoners. They did this and decided that and killed the Governor and some soldiers in the process. After this the French Revolution began. The people fought against the army and the nobles. Lots of nobles, including the King and Queen, were killed using a guillotine, which was a type of machine for cutting people's heads off quickly.

The people took over the ruling of the country and declared France a Republic. They have never had a King or Queen since then. Unfortunately, there were lots of fights about who should be the leader of France. After about 10 years of fighting, a man called Napoleon Bonaparte took over, and ruled as if he was a King, although he called himself an Emperor. He led France into many wars and only stopped when he tried to invade Russia and failed.

Lots of famous French symbols come from the Revolution, like the French national anthem, La Marseillaise and the national motto "Liberté, égalité, fraternité" which means "Freedom, equality, brotherhood". The storming of The Bastille, which started the Revolution, is celebrated every 14th of July and is called Bastille Day.

gunpowder is a powder that explodes when a flame touches it it was used in old fashioned guns

Governor is the name for the boss of a prison

Revolution is when people change the political system quickly, usually by fighting

Republic is the name for a country where there is no King or Queen and the people make decisions about the laws themselves

5. Famous landmarks

France is filled with famous buildings, both old and new. Can you answer the questions about these famous buildings?

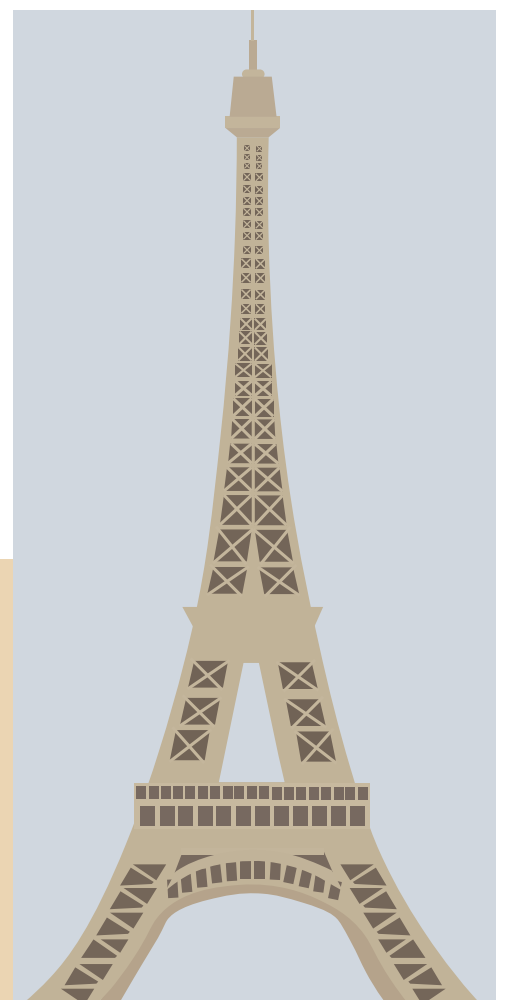

Remember to look for the star - it's the answer to the puzzle!

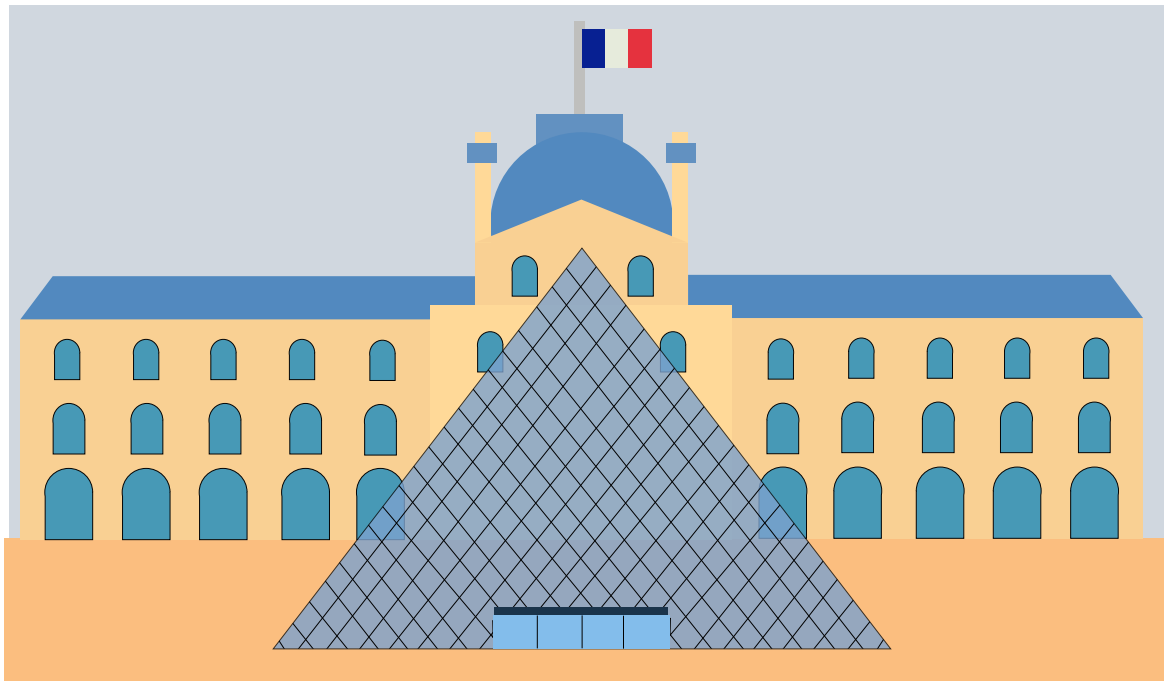

This is the famous “Pont du Gard” near Nimes in southern France. It was built by the Romans to carry something from one side of the valley to the other. But what?

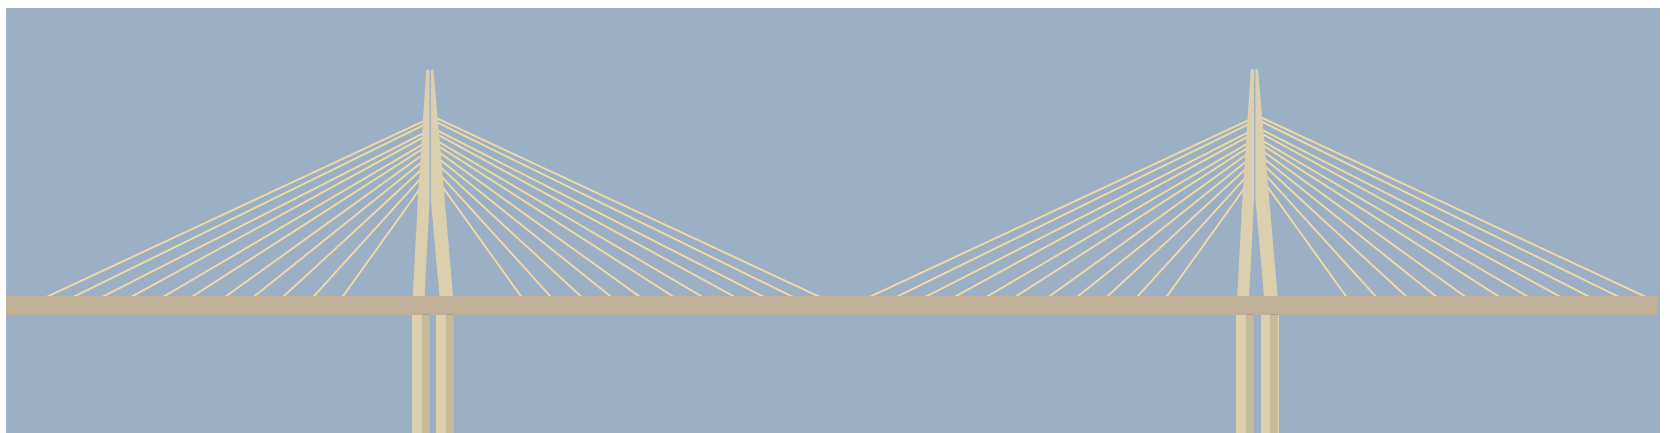

This ancient abbey is on an island in normandy in the north of France. In English, it's name is “St Michael's Mount” – but what is its name in French?

Gustave _ _ _ _ _ was the engineer who built this tower in Paris between 1887 1889. It is one of the most famous structures in the world. What was the engineer's name? (Hint: The tower is named after him!)

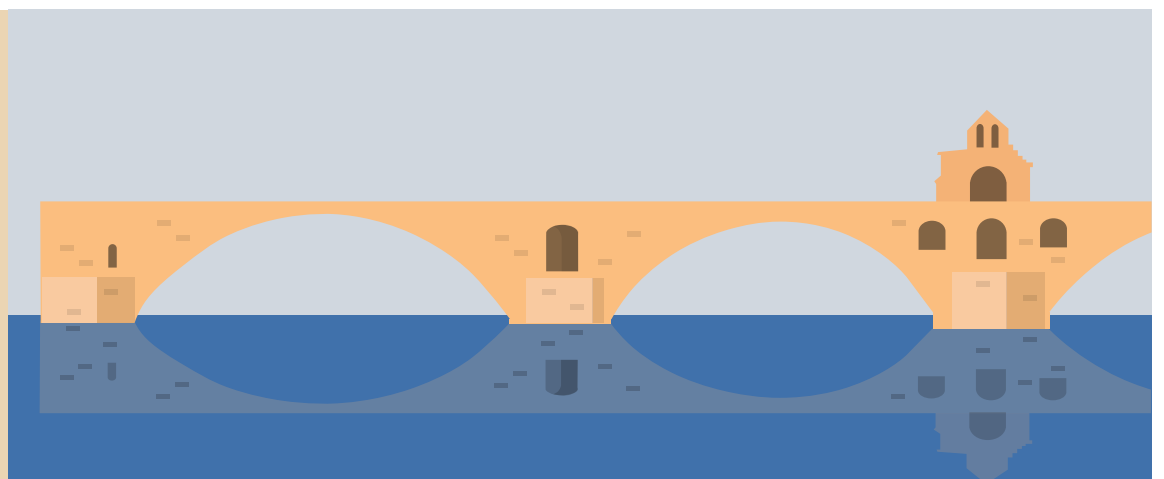

This is (by far) the most visited art gallery and museum in the world – and it's in Paris! What is it called?

This is the tallest bridge in the whole world and one of the most beautiful - what is it called?

This is the Pont d'Avignon, a medieval bridge in the south of France. It is famous because the bridge only goes partway across the river.

It also has a song written about it, but what is the song called?

6. Train Timetable

France has a big train network - it's over 18,580 miles long! You can travel around the whole country just by train. There are really fast trains called TGVs, intercity trains, regional trains called TERs or overnight trains that you can put your car on. You can also travel to other countries like the UK, Belgium, The Netherlands and Germany.

You are at Gare du Nord in Paris. From this station trains depart to Northern France and international destinations. Make sure you don't miss your train. Check the time on the station and the departure times for the trains and answer the questions.

1. You want to go to Lille. How long do you have to wait before your train leaves?

2. The train to Lille arrives at 11:44. What is the duration of the trip?

3. The train to Amiens takes 1 hour and 9 minutes. What time does the train arrive?

4. The train to Beauvais is 14 minutes delayed. When does it leave?

5. You miss the train to Valenciennes, so you get the next train. But where does it go?

7. In the library

Remember to look for the star - that's the answer for this page!

There's been a flood in the archives of the Bibliothèque Nationale de France (the National Library of France). The records of some of the most famous French books have been damaged. Can you help the librarian by working out the missing authors and titles? You may need to do some research on the Internet for this one.
